THE CHINA MAIL.

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1868.

WE make no comment on the result of to-day's proceedings in Regina v. Saint, nor shall we allude to the case-or cases, rather-before the day of trial, unless circumstances should arise to make preliminary allusion justifiable. The shocking anomaly of a British subject being denied, in a British Colony, the opportunity of self-defence in actions at the suit of a foreign power, and by the resuscitation of a practically obsolete law, is now removed, and now, as Mr Hayllar very well put it, "the case will proceed on a good fighting basis."

UNLUCKY RESURRECTIONISTS. Readers of the Shanghai papers will have perused with some astonishment certain accounts which have appeared in recent issues of the Recorder and Evening Express respecting an expedition undertaken by the steamer China to Corea. done so is as discreditable to their official ex officio information was the only mode of Our own curiosity was sufficiently excited to induce us to make enquiries as to the truth or otherwise of the extraordinary hints and allusions contained in the columns of the last-named paper, and we are now able on tolerably reliable authority to place a statement of the affair before our readers. We venture to assert that a more audacious scheme of petty filibustering has seldom been made public in this part of the world.

Some little time ago, it is reported a French priest to whom the recent sufferings and massacre of his countrymen in Corea had become an object of profound consideration, hit upon what he conceived to be a short and effectual method of setting all difficulties between his missionary brethren and the Corean authorities. The remains of the grandfather of the present King of that country appear since his death to have been held in such superstitions veneration, that not only is his memory worshipped as that of a saint, but the very security of the Kingdom is presumed by the natives to depend upon the safe custody of his bones. Now it appeared to the projector of the scheme that if these relics could be got hold of they might be held to ransom, and that sooner than permit them to be carried away the Coreans, if unable to oppose by force, would agree to almost any terms which might be demanded-the terms desired by the sanguine proposer being, it is hardly nec ssary to say, freedom of travel and residence, etc., for the French missionaries in the Corean peninsula,

By some means the luminous idea thus conceived came to the knowledge of a Mr Jenkins-a gentleman of the American persuasion—whose imagination was as brilliant as, while his ability to raise the "sinews of war" exceeded, that of the his place of common resort) was proved to diplomatic churchman. At least the re- have been twice in Gaol for perjury, and unwilling to let her go off on a wild goose chase without security, demanded, and it is said obtained, a security of $100,000 for her due return. These little prelimina- for three months as a rogue and vagabond ries finished, the next step was to take measures for getting at the bones when the find security in $25 for a period of one tumulus containing them was reached. To this end two hundred coolies were engaged at the rate of Taels 9 per month as diggers, their wits being further sharpened by the report that treasure as as bones was the object of their search. A German named Oppert was engaged to accompany the party, and thus constituted, the latest China expedition set sail—accompanied, of course, by the bone-seeking ecclesiastic. Arrived at the snot, the work of "ressurrectionizing " commenced. But foreseen difficulties interposed to prevent the new description of "diggings" proving remunerative. The natives positively refused to sell anything to the pigtailed and wide awaked intruders, and as food was a necessity, it was decided to follow out the old rule-"That he should take who had the power." And he should keep who can ;" only it unfortunately happened that the Corears had the best of the argu-i might be advised." This form of clea the as they could and their innocent lambs and fat beasts from being devoured by the marauders. While the latter were in the act "lifting" some cattle, the Coreans let fly invading body retreated as fast as their contemplated that defendant should not extreme funk would permit, leaving their dead on the field—or roadway. TO DAY'S POLICE. (Before Mr May)—By information from Mr D. R. Caldwell, on behalf of the Gambling Farmer, one of those houses used as a haunt by dangerous and suspicious characters was broken up by the Police last night. The resort is No. 68 Square Street, Taipingshan; and in it were found fifteen Chinese, some half-a-dozen or more of whom were identified as having been in Gaol for various offences. Prisoners, when arrested, were found hid in various rooms in the house, except two, who were smoking opium. Inspector Kirby parrated the mode of prisoners' arrest, and gave it as his opinion that opium was prepared and sold at the house; he had no evidence to prove this, except the half-boiled onlym and opium-preparing utensils produced found in the house, coupled with fact that two of the prisoners were found smoking in the house. One of the fellows escaped by means of cutting off his tail (supposed to be a false queue). then slipping off. Against one of the pri soners. P. C. (Before the Hon. the CHIEF JUSTICE. June 10, 1868, REGINA V. SAINT. This argument on the rule nisi for leave to plead justification came on for re-argument by the Attorney General, as requested by the Chief Justice at last sitting. Attorney General and the Crown Solicitor anneared for the prosecution; and Mr. Hayllar, instructed by Mr Gaskell, appeared on behalf of defendant. Mr Pollard. who was the Attorney General's junior on the last occasion, was not present.

The Attorney General said that he much regretted the tone of the discussion at the last hearing of the case: it had arisen from a mistaken notion entertained by Mr. Pollard of his instructions. The learned counsel had been advised by the Crown Solicitor to oppose as to the form of the plea; which asked that defendant might be allowed to plead not only justification, but "such other pleas as Crown Solicitor was instructed to opnose. the right given by Lord Campbell's Act to file plea of justification. Mr Pollard, however, was under the impression that he was called upon to take every objection, and he did so accordingly. The Chief Justice asked whether the former proceedings in the case should be preserved, or whether they should be looked the ill advised bone-seeker, not taken upon as if they had never been heard. Unless they were so regarded by both parties, lie would be bound to take notice of

The Attorney General said that by both parties they would be regarded as amounting to nothing. Mr Hayllar espressed his gratification at the explanation given by the learned Attorproceeding open to him.

Mr Hayllar remarked that the original rule was simply a request for time to plead. The Chief Justice said that, from first to last, on Friday, Mr Pollard put it that the libel was of a public character, and that, according to the law, no plea of justification was allowable. He had prepared some remarks on the distinctions of libel, which would not now be necessary for the case but every libel in his opinion was a public

He thought that both sides desired to fight this matter fairly and fully, and now that the learned Attorney General had spoken in that constitutional way in which he expected he would do there was one point he wished to note; and that was one which had been lostright of. It was the case of Regina v. Newman. In that case there were twenty-three distinct assertions, each of which was libel, and only one of those was proved be true. Then the case went for judgment to the Queen's Beuch ; it had to be tried again, and the judges had to go over each libel as a jury. He hoped that both parties would save him from such a dilemma, and take steps which would prevent the same mistake as that which occurred in the case above referred to. regarded defamatory libels (such as this was) particularly against a public man, had been laid down that "bong fide observations on all persons responsible to the public may be made with perfect freedom and without being questioned too nicely for either truth or justice." He quoted the language of Sir F. Pollock, late Chief Baron, in 1846. (15 Mecson & Welsby), whose authority carried the more weight considering how long and under what administrations he had been Attorney General. More emphatic language was used by Mr Baron Bramwell, who well said "happily for us it s so "-language coincided in by the present Lord Chief Justice. CORRESPONDENCE. MACAO AND THE BRITISH

To the Editor of the "China Mail." Hongkong, June 10, 1868. Sia, -After a vain attempt to plead "in behalf of Macao," it is satisfactory to ob. serve the confirmation of the expulsion of the British subjects from the Holy City. The extract from the "Annals of Macao" has certainly corroborated the true quota tions from the Diary of October 1839, but am at a loss to understand how it has "confirmed" such an assertion as this "they (the Britishers) were at liberty to remain and he (the Governor of Macao would protect them. &c. It cannot supposed that such soothing expressions could have been made use of by the Governor of Macao when the proclamation of neutrality was on the tapis; neither can be supposed that with such a proclamation staring him in the face, the Governor himself would have disregarded it by offering to "protect" the English. Taking i therefore for granted that the neutrality was proclaimed on the very day (26th Aug. 1839) on which the British subjects shook the Praya Grande dust off their feet, does not then the truth of your remark as to Macao having "inhospitably shut her gates to British subjects," appear as clearly de-monstrated as the failure of the attempt to

But a few more quotations from the Diary of August 1839 may not prove uninteresting, and here they are :--"17th August, Mrs Elliot and Mrs Taylor eft Macao, and took refuge on board a ship in the Typa. 19th, Mrs Elliot sailed for Hongkong. 23rd, Captain Elliot Macao accompanied by the members of H. ARMY CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS A correspondent of the London Scotsman narrates the following illustrative anec-

In a certain barrack-yard a squadron of dragoons were drawn up on foot parade, and were being inspected by an officer who His Lordship continued-There was one had lately joined the regiment, and was afflicted with an unconquerable stutter, On his way down the ranks he halted in front of a soldier, whose appearance did please his eye. "Your b-b-belts are v-v-very d-d-dirty, sir," was his criticism. "I b-b-beg your p-p-pardon, sir," remonstrated the private, "but the p-p-p-pircolay was very b-b-bad." "D-d-dann your impudence," roared the officer. "p-n-put him in the g-g-guard-room, sergeant." The Sydney Empire of the 7th April having been requested to do so, publishes the following communication, without expressing any opinion as to the correctness or otherwise of the sentiments attributed to his Royal Bighness:- "The generous Prince who has just departed from our shores has, we believe, left behind him with the Governor an earnest expression of his hope that the local Government will not carry out the sentence passed upon O'Farrell without first referring the matter to the Imperial authorities. A characteristic piece of Victorian enterprise is indicated by the fact that Mr Hoyt, whose name was well known in connexion with coaching in Victoria in former years, and latterly in New Zealand, is about to sail for Japan in the steamer Albion (of which he is now part owner), to try coaching in that country (!)

We learn that Colonel Smith, of the Royal Artillery, now stationed here, has identified a photograph of the person who claims to be Sir Roger Tichbourne, as that of Lieutenant Roger Tichbourne, of the A troop of Royal Artillery, known as the Chesnut Troop. The portrait was taken at Wagga Wagga, when the claimant was in his bush dress. It was submitted to Cowas immediately picked out by him, Colonel Smith having been (about 1852 or 1853) a lieutenant in the troop referred to. This seems very strong testimony to the bond fides of the Australian claimant.

In the meantime, we can assure our readers that no one who takes the trouble to gain a more intimate knowledge of it, will regret the time employed.

Miscellaneous,

(Hankow Times, Mar. 1867.) We insert this week, apropos of some piquant correspondence which has appeared of the late in our columns, an extract from the new publication, "Notes and Queries on China and Japan," on the subject of infanticide, which we particularly recommend to the notice of our contributors as containing some reliable facts in connection with the vexed question. * * * Such a work as the "Notes" is peculiarly adapted for bringing to light valuable information in respect to this country, and its people, language, and institutions; and we trust it will be as warmly supported as it deserves by the numerous rising and energetic men, who are now, thanks principally to the philological labours of Mr Secretary Wade, making rapid advance in the acquirement of the languages to say nothing of the devoted missionaries who have already grown grey in their service to the cause to which they have given themselves. (Foochow Missionary Recorder, April, 1867.) The two first numbers of Notes & Querise on China and Japan have been placed on our table. The magazine is every way creditable to its editor and publishers, and we cannot but wish them the utmost success in their efforts to fill an important and hitherto noccupied place in Eastern literattre.

(Shanghai Recorder, May 17, 1867.) We are put in possession of the fourth number of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan." In saying that the present number equals in interest and importance its predecessors, we have already said a great deal in its favour. Our knowledge of separating what is really new, from what cribed is much to be desired * * * to those connected with the far East, we must hail the appearance of "Notes and Queries." * * * We need only add that the periodical is of convenient size, is carefully edited by Mr N. B. Dennys, and is published at the low price of $4 per annum; and having said this, we trust that "Notes and Queries on China and Japan" will meet with that success which so creditable a production deserves at the hands of those interested in Aziatic researches. Report of North China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.

Two periodicals which are likely to be of great service have also been commenced one is published at Foochow and is called "The Missionary Recorder," and the other emanates from Hongkong and is called "Notes & Queries." It is intended to serve as a medium of intercommunication for persons interested in Chinese Philology, Geography or History. These indications of literary activity are perhaps the most import ant "sign of the times" : bas been our province to record, for they are all means to facilitate that mutual understanding one of the other, which seems so hard to establish between Europe and China.

A very interesting book has lately been published, entitled "The Treaty Forts of China and Japan," to which it forms i complete guide, and regarding the history of which it gives interesting particulars. Maps of the various localities described are inserted, and an appendix shews the existing means of transport between Europe and America and these two countries. A work of the kind was much needed, to place within reach of the general public information regarding the districts in which they reside that had hitherto been concealed under the mysterious bieroglyphics of the Chinese language, or at best open only to sinologues.
